“Aviation in Africa”

Bremen 21th June 2018

G.A.R.S., City University of Applied Sciences Bremen and Bergamo University are pleased to announce the second workshop on Aviation in Africa to be held on the 21th June 2018 at the University of Applied Sciences Bremen in conjunction with the 15th Aviation Student Research Workshop”, 22 and 23 June 2018<sup>1</sup>. We have agreed on a regular workshop series. Bergamo University will host the next workshop. We are happy to confirm the following key speakers:

- Prof. Ken Button, George Mason University, USA
- Prof. Gianmaria Martini, University of Bergamo, Italy
- Dr Eric Njoya, University of Huddersfield, UK
- Nicola Volta, Cranfield University, UK

While a vast literature exists on a broad-range of topics related to air transport in other regions of the world, comparatively little attention has been paid to aviation in Africa. Although in recent years an increasing number of studies have focused on air transport liberalisation and airline network development in Africa, the literature has devoted little attention to aviation infrastructure and airline business strategies on the continent. This is surprising given that during the past fifteen years the continent has witnessed a remarkably rapid growth in both intra and intercontinental air traffic.

We try to avoid a too narrow focus on air transport and like to discuss air transport in the wider context of development in particular transport, tourism, trade and economic integration.

The objectives of the workshop are to:

- Discuss the current state of commercial aviation in the region;
- Identify the key variables that help shape the current air transport environment;
- Contribute towards a deeper understanding of air transport in Africa.
- Assess the role of air transport in a modal transport perspective
- Discuss the role of air transport as part trade, tourism and economic integration

Topics of interest

- Aviation and development
- The role of air cargo
